

Website Name: "The Archives of Arconia"

The world of Arconia is my passion project that has been ongoing for just over five years. Arconia is a fantasy world which I have created, mapped, and filled with all sorts of characters and magical artifacts to hopefully be expanded across several outlets, one of which I've already accomplished being a prequel d&d minicampaign. This website/project will be used as a portfolio and wiki page for some of the content I have created. This content could be anything from maps, characters, items, pieces of the world's lore, or much more. I'm confident and excited to not only expand on the world I've made, but to also do so in an academic setting.

- Home/About (The main page that will serve as the root of all the other branching pages. This will also include a "contact us" section.)
- Lore (This will be a very text-heavy section of the site. I'm also potentially thinking this page could just be a branching point that links to different pieces of the lore? Or maybe just have dropdown menus if I don't have enough? Unsure. Will figure this out as I go)

- Archives (This page is another one that will branch out and link to a lot of other categories. It'll include pictures that represent each section, the name of it (obviously), and a short description of each.)
  - Items (Magical artifacts, armors, weapons, trinkets, etc. I know for sure that this one is going to link to another page where people can create and edit their own items. Some of the data that will be stored will be: Item Name, Item Type, Description, Features, and maybe a few other things (If I think of them.)
  - Characters (similar to the items section, this page will be an archive of some of the notable characters within the world, including all the data that users will be able to add on the character creator page. I have a lot of properties for this one, so bear with me: Name, Level, Classes and Subclasses, Affinity, Guild, Age, Gender, Eye Color, Hair Style and Color, Skin Color, Personality, Alignment, Description. Okay that seems like a lot, but it's pretty much going to be simple fill in the blank lines.
  - Elemental Domains & Deities (There are 23 deities in this world, each correlating with a type of elemental magic known as 'Affinities.' This page is an archive for them. No creation subpage.)

- Gallery (This one may either be one main section, or two. The one I'm definitely sure about is a pictures section of different locations around the world of Arconia. Potentially could link to little pages? Or maybe when you click on the pictures, it opens up like a little dropdown menu with a description? Something like that. The other part that I may or may not do is character art. This one could potentially just be absorbed into the characters section of the archive page, so I'm not 100% if this one will exist. Both of these sections, I'll have to be careful with though. Most of the artwork I typically find on Pinterest, so I have to be careful about what is and what isn't copyrighted.

